

WESTERLY'S FIRE ALARM TESTED

Run for Department, but that was all—Supt. W. H. Holmes, Jr. Elected President of State Travelers Association—John McMurphy Dead—Daily Liquor Raids.

A modern three-circuit fire alarm has recently been installed in Westerly. Just before noon Saturday the alarm was given its first test and the demonstration was satisfactory as far as went the alarm, as it was not pre-arranged by Chief Cottrell, and therefore a practical test.

Someone, presumably a mischievous boy, broke the glass, turned the key and sent in the alarm from box 46, at Beach and Clark streets. Within six minutes the fire apparatus was at the scene of the alarm, ready for service, which was a quick run when distance is taken into consideration, but there was nothing doing in the fire line. It was a false alarm, the first in Westerly since the night of the celebration of William Howard Taft's election to the presidency of the United States, when it was made one of the unexpected features of the local celebration, and had the effect of lessening the noisy demonstration in Dixon square.

The Sullivan, owners of the largest summer place at Watch Hill and known by all in Westerly, have won in the state lottery by the purchase of a ticket to recover $3,192 on a ground that Mrs. Sullivan agreed to pay for the article.

The testimony showed that this jewelry was part of certain collateral delivered by Sullivan to insure the payment of a percentage of his indebtedness of $10,000 to Tiffany & company. He had one year in which to buy back the property.

Councilmen Burdick and Culey, the police committee of the town council of Westerly, are looking for the police. There have been many rumors that the police have been issued that work will go forward until their term of office ends next June. There was a raid Saturday evening and another Sunday morning.

The officers visited the premises of Patrick Hulse in Franklin street Saturday and seized half a barrel of ale on draught. It was carried to the police station to await court action.

Sunday the premises in Pierce street occupied by Arthur Benvenuti were raided and the officers seized and conveyed to the police station half a barrel of ale, a keg of beer, four bottles of beer and a quart bottle of beer with whiskey. The officers also found evidence of sale of liquor.

Raymond J. Jodoin, the democratic nominee for congress from the Third Connecticut district, was in Pawcatuck Sunday straightening the points of his political career. He was escorted through the village by democrats of prominence and gave the glad hand to

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYRON, 1111 Kerlerey St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

THE HONEY BEE.
J. K. Goodrich's Interesting Paper Read at Meeting of Waterbury's Naturalist Club.

At the meeting of the Naturalist club of Waterbury, says the American J. K. Goodrich gave an excellent paper entitled The Product of the Honey Bee. Honey, which was replete with information concerning the honey bee, and its product, honey. As far back as the dawn of history the honey bee was regarded as a benefactor to the human race and upon the ancient monuments of Egypt and in the classic writings of Greece and Rome we find many references to the bee, which has the distinction of being the only insect kept by man in a domestic form.

The interest of our forefathers in these busy little people was due to the fact that honey was the only sweet which they could readily obtain. Bees stand first among insects in regard to the useful products which they give us, not only honey, but wax forms a product of great commercial value.

Mr. Goodrich defined honey as nectar taken from the flowers and digested to a certain extent by the insect itself. It is a very neutral substance containing much water, though the amount is a variable, several kinds of sugar and a small amount of nitrogenous matter in the form of pollen. The nectar in the bee's stomach undergoes a partial change on the first stage as now begun. The sources of honey are the apple blossom in May, the clover and many other flowers through the summer months. The base woods or lindens, the red and white clovers, the asters and buckwheat form honey in the fall.

The best honey is produced in the temperate zone; there are too many rank and poisonous plants in the tropics; honey from certain districts in Turkey causes headache, and honey from Brazil is used chiefly for medicine. At the present day honey is placed upon the market in two forms, in the comb and extracted, or what may be called strained honey. It is stated that during the eleventh and twelfth centuries whole shiploads of honey and wax were exported from Germany to Palestine. Immense quantities of honey are used by bakers, both in America and in Europe. When honey is used in breadstuffs the product remains sweet and moist for a long period.

Manufacturers may fail and commodities be debased, but the sweets of the wild flowers and the industry and natural mechanics of the bee will go on without change or deterioration. Mr. Goodrich closed his paper with a quote from the scriptures in Proverbs xiv. "Eat thou honey because it is good."

The Verdict.
When the time came for the renomination of a member of a southern legislature, the member sauntered down to the corner store one night to sound out the opinion of his townsmen as to whether he should be sent back to the capital of his state as a lawmaker.

"Well, boys," he said to the assembled politicians, "what about it?" There was an embarrassing pause. "Speak right out, fellows," he encouraged the meeting.

"To tell the truth, Sam," said one of the crowd, "we've decided that, judging from what this hybrid county got out of the legislature while you were there, we thought as well have writ a letter!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Two Spies.
Mr. Editor: "The apple of the eye" and the Northern Spy have been trying to see whether the Yellow Transparent and the Golden Sweet were guilty of taking bribes, for their color looks very suspicious.

The spies have carefully looked through the Yellow Transparent and find nothing criminal in it, and they are quite certain of the innocence of the Golden Sweet, although one can't look through it except he be a mind reader or has an X-ray machine.

Pursuing another line of investigation, the spies are now engaged in determining whether the real face of each disgruntled republican came from a sudden disappointment or the reflection of a Baldwin.

The spies are also endeavoring to find out who originated "grafting" fruit, but suspect that Eve did by stealing "Adam's apple" from him and secreting it in the human throat.

The Nonesuch apple believes there is no such apple as "Adam's apple," but physiologists claim there is, and that it is a "good keeper." That honor, one would generally judge, lies between "Adam's apple" and a 70 year old Baldwin. In that presumption the two spies concur.

Fred Roosevelt is now richly enjoying himself dissecting a Baldwin and passing a piece to every workman. Today, you know, the "progressive" is not "retrogressive"—never backward in coming forward.

Among the muses the Roxbury says, "Bury the republican hatchet and be on hand at the first old fashioned 'apple paring' after election, to hear the report of the spies and to do any other business proper to be done at said meeting."

The Seek-Not-Further apple is of the opinion that the spies should not increase their labors by further attempting to discover whether Wealthy apple is made entirely out of "grafting wax." It's enough, perhaps, to know that it stands in pretty well with the public pal & when it is pared or compared with the Baldwin.

C. H. TALCOTT.
Norwich, Oct. 29, 1910.

A New Jersey Pastor.
Down in New Jersey there is a demonstration in public opinion. The sentiment is bent upon the extermination of the office. In his plea to the voters he says: "I am not a candidate because I want this office, which is to pay $5,000 a year, for if elected I expect to convince the New Jersey legislature that they made a mistake when they established the office, for it is worthless. There is no need of the office, and if the deeds in the county clerk's office are being delayed the salary to be paid the register could be spent in hiring additional clerks in the county clerk's office."

"This man is a patriot, but a misguided one, misled by modern political standards. The idea nowadays is to create more offices, instead of abolishing the old ones. The tax payers seem to like to be taxed to provide someone with a soft job. We think this Jewess will be defeated, and if she is not, we will convince the voters that the man is simply a crank; besides, at some time in the future they or their friends will want it for themselves. When business administrations are instituted it will be discovered that 25 per cent of the places are sinecures, and might be abolished without in any way impairing the public service."—Rochester Herald.

Convenient English Custom.
In England a small carafe, or water bottle, with a drinking glass inverted over the top, is always kept in every bedroom and freshly filled morning and night. This is a most convenient custom where there is not running water in or near the room, as one will often go without the wished for swallow after a disagreeable pill or to relieve a sudden cough or sneeze rather than trouble to send for it. Children are always "wanting a drink," and they can be taught to get it for themselves if it is always in some convenient place and kept free from dust by the overturned tumbler is far better for them than water in an open pitcher.

Knobs on Them.
Uncle Jerry Peabody was about to start on a week's visit to the country. "Have you got everything?" asked Aunt Ann Peabody.

He looked hastily through his valise. "No, by George," he exclaimed. "I've forgot my sheet of sandpaper!"

"What does he want of that?" inquired Nephew Bill as the old gentleman went to hunt it up.

"He has to sandpaper his heels every other morning," explained Aunt Ann, "to keep from wearing holes through his socks."—Chicago Tribune.

Portuguese Government Officials declined to attend a memorial mass in Lisbon for the victims of the revolution, desiring to remain neutral on religious matters. A decree was issued on separation of church and state.

The Cooks who have used the Single Damper of the Crawford Ranges will never go back to the troublesome two-damper range

The cost of the food spoiled by mistakes in regulating the ordinary two-damper ranges amounts to a large sum.

The Single Damper of the Crawford affords absolute fire and oven control by one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," the range does the rest.

The Oven of the Crawford has cup-joint heat flues which heat everywhere alike and make it the quickest and surest of bakers.

The Two Hods (patented) in the base—one for ashes instead of the old clumsy ash pan—one for coal, is a great trouble-saving feature.

Gas Ovens and Broilers above or at end of range, if desired.

"Then, in the name of common sense, what's your motive?"
